Six Flags Moving to 100 Percent Cage-Free Eggs

September 15, 2016

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Six Flags Entertainment Corporation (NYSE:SIX), the world's largest regional theme park company, has made a commitment to solely use cage-free eggs in its U.S. theme park operations no later than 2026.

"We are proud to participate in this growing consumer preference and we support the movement toward using cage-free eggs," said David McKillips, senior vice president of in-park services. "Our initiative is in line with the company's focus on making a difference in our communities."

"We welcome Six Flags' cage-free commitment," said Joyana Hunt, corporate engagement specialist for The Humane Society of the United States. "American consumers are increasingly interested in this issue, making the cage-free switch both a good thing for customers and animals alike."
