The Board will be made up of expert voices in the veterinary space who offer a unique perspective on pet care and wellbeing.

"At PetMeds, we believe every pet deserves to live a long, happy, healthy life, and veterinary care is a significant part of this reality," said Matt Hulett, CEO of PetMeds. "Veterinarians offer an unparalleled depth of knowledge, insight, and first-hand experience that is invaluable to the work that we do, and we're honored to have this talented group of experts weighing in on our strategies and guiding our business practices."

"By establishing this Veterinarian Advisory Board, PetMeds is making a real commitment to the veterinarian community," Dr. Teller said. "It's an exciting move that will surely lead to more meaningful collaborations between veterinarians and the broader pet care industry, and provide additional tools and resources that will benefit pets and pet parents alike."
