Located at the former site of the renowned Geauga Lake Amusement Park and Sea World, this highly anticipated residential community will feature a total of 308 townhomes and single-family homes. Joined by Aurora city officials, the development was officially unveiled in a celebratory ribbon-cutting ceremony this week.

“We are thrilled to introduce our latest Aurora community located at Geauga Lake, a place known for its rich history and a source of many childhood memories,” said Paul Spenthoff, division president for PulteGroup in Cleveland. “This is a new chapter for Geauga Lake, and we are excited to give families an opportunity to create lasting new memories here as residents.”
