

Stratus Attends PTC's LiveWorx 2019 to Demonstrate Updates to ztC Edge Portfolio

2019-06-11

Software and Hardware Updates Showcased in the BrewWorx process factory at LiveWorx

MAYNARD, Mass., — June 11, 2019 — Stratus Technologies, a global leader in simplified, protected, autonomous edge computing solutions, is attending LiveWorx 2019, June 10-13 in Boston, Mass. At the event, Stratus will showcase its updated ztC Edge computing portfolio as part of the BrewWorx factory area at the Xtropolis Digital Transformation event. The demo will include Stratus Redundant Linux 2.0, the virtualization and availability software that powers ztC Edge, and 110i, a new hardware model. The latest updates provide enhanced security, monitoring and performance to address customers' growing needs at the edge.

ztC Edge, a rugged, reliable, highly automated computing platform, allows operators at the edge with limited IT resources to easily deploy, manage and maintain business-critical applications, improving productivity while lowering risk.

"As companies in the industrial sector continue to search for new methods to manage their mission-critical and edge applications, we're excited to be at LiveWorx this week demonstrating our latest updates to the ztC Edge portfolio," said Jason Dietrich, CRO, Stratus. "Stratus provided the edge computing infrastructure to host the production applications managing the BrewWorx factory at the show."

Demo Power Hours are held Tuesday and Wednesday in Xtropolis. Product experts will be available so attendees can get up close and personal with their software and services and get answers to questions. Stop by the BrewWorx demonstration at LiveWorx for a demonstration of Stratus' ztC Edge portfolio or follow us on Twitter at
